Introduction to Session Papers

"Session Papers" are printed papers (Some exist in manuscript form, but these are rare) which were used in the presentation of cases in the Court of Session. Before the reforms of the nineteenth century, for the most part cases were put before the Court on paper. As James Boswell (the famous biographer, who was also an advocate) said:

> Ours is a court of papers. We are never seriously engaged but when we write. We may be compared to the Highlanders in 1745. Our pleading is like their firing their musketry, which > did little execution. We do not fall heartily to work till we take to our pens, as they do their broadswords.

During this early period, the Court did not issue written opinions, and there was little record of the thinking behind a court's decisions. What little law reporting went on reflected the contents of Session Papers more than the oral interchanges in the chamber. In the absence of other forms of evidence, Session Papers, rich in humanity and content, are the best source for understanding the issues involved in cases and the decisions reached regarding them.
All human life is here in Scotland's Session Papers. In addition to indictments, pleading and background papers and the like, maps and diagrams can often be found. Papers are often annotated by hand, giving clues as to the attitude and reaction of an advocate to his opponent's evidence and arguments.

There seem to have been two main drivers behind the collection of Session Papers. The first is practical – Session Papers were a source of precedent and guidance, and some have been found to refer to other Session Papers in a way reminiscent of modern case citations. Manuscript annotations also suggest that this was a common purpose behind collection. But collectors also acted out of sheer enthusiasm and love for the law – a collection of Session Papers is a treasure trove of Scottish thought, philosophy and civilization-building in a nation enjoying an intellectual golden age unmatched anywhere since Greece or Rome.

About This Index

The Signet Library's Index to the Session Papers 1713-1820 was the work of one man – Alexander Mill, who served the WS Society as an Assistant for 65 years between 1870 and 1935. The work occupied him for the whole of the Great War, with the final volume being completed shortly before the Armistice. It remains the only index of its kind, and will remain so until the collections of Session Papers themselves, held at the Signet Library and the Advocates Library in Edinburgh, are themselves fully digitized.

About This Digitization

The Index is about 1800 pages long and is bound in three elephant folios – one a Subject Index and Index to WS Members involved in the Papers, and two name and place index volumes, A-K and L-Z. Each page has been photographed and each resulting image optimized for online viewing. The decision was taken not to disband the volumes prior to photography, and this means that a significant proportion of the pages exhibit "keystoning" to some degree. "Keystoning" refers to the text falling out of alignment owing to the surface of the page photographed not being completely flat. Later work on the images may allow this effect to be eliminated. For the time being, the key detriment resulting from keystoning is a loss of accuracy in the machine reading of the text. Users are advised not to rely entirely upon the text search provided by the Internet Archive but to use the Index as described below.

How to Use this Index

The Index is in three alphabetical volumes – two volumes indexing the names of parties to the various cases in the Session Papers, and a third indexing subjects (types of cases, place names, organizations etc.). Each volume is present as a separate entity on the Internet Archive – please refer to the Society's Library Catalogue for precise addresses/urls.

Each entry in the indexes carries a reference. The reference will be to the volume concerned, and to the collection of papers within the volume. For instance, "25.5" means volume 25, and the fifth collection of papers within the volume (each paper in the fifth collection will bear a handwritten "5" on its front page). Some references will be prefixed "F" – e.g. F5.5. This means volume F5, and the fifth collection of papers in that volume.

Each collection of papers – e.g. the "5" of "25.5" – can contain one or more separate papers from a case, and on occasion ten or more papers.

Contact the WS Society (library@wssociety.co.uk) for details on how to access the papers themselves. Papers can be consulted in person at the Library, and it may be possible to supply copies by email or post.
